Topic 5 — Revolt of 1857

Covers syllabus (click to expand)

Revolt of 1857 | Causes | Beginning of Revolt | Centres of Revolt | Leaders of Revolt | Important Places | Consequences | Historiography | Peel Commission | Rani Lakshmibai (रानी लक्ष्मीबाई) | Nana Sahib (नाना साहेब) | Tantia Tope (तात्या टोपे) | Kunwar Singh (कुंवर सिंह) | Begum Hazrat Mahal (बेगम हज़रत महल) | Mangal Pandey (मंगल पांडे) | Role of Awadh (अवध) | Role of Uttar Pradesh (उत्तर प्रदेश) | Assam | Auwa

Sources baked in: NCERT Themes III, Spectrum, Bipan Chandra, Savarkar, Ghatnachakra Purvalokan (Revolt of 1857), UPPCS Prelims 2018–2025 Weight: ★★★ — centre↔leader, place↔date, Bareilly, Kunwar/Lakshmibai, Awadh 1856, historiography labels, Peel army Last verified: September 2026 gap audit — centre CCR confirmed; civilian vs sepoy + partial success + Acts-after cards filled; Extra Drill present (no invented mega banks) Current Affairs: N/A (historical)

5.0 One clear picture — why 1857 rose and fell

Stage	Fact
Long causes	Lapse, Awadh 1856 (अवध), revenue, mission fear, sepoy grievances
Spark	Greased cartridge + Barrackpore / Meerut
Spread	Delhi symbol → UP–Bihar–Central India belt
Suppression	Loyal princes, Punjab/South quiet, telegraph/rail, no central command
Aftermath	GOI Act 1858, Queen's Proclamation, army reorganised, Crown rule

Why Punjab and the South stayed mostly loyal / quiet

- Recent Sikh wars left Punjab under tight Company control with Sikh chiefs allied to the British.
- Madras and Bombay armies had different recruitment patterns and fewer high-caste Bengal Army grievances.
- Many southern princes and Hyderabad backed the Company.
- The revolt's core was the Bengal Army belt of North India, not a pan-India plan.

Nature of the revolt (historiography — keep short)

- British writers stressed a sepoy mutiny (John Lawrence, Seeley).
- Sir James Outram and W. Taylor called it a Hindu–Muslim conspiracy (Muslim plot using Hindu grievances).
- T.R. Holmes framed it as a clash of civilisation and barbarism.
- V.D. Savarkar (1909) called it the First War of Independence.

- R.C. Majumdar (The Sepoy Mutiny and the Revolt of 1857, 1957) wrote that it was neither first, nor national, nor a war of independence.
- S.N. Sen (Eighteen Fifty-Seven, 1957) was the official historian of the freedom struggle for the Government of India; with Majumdar he also treated mid-19th-century nationalism as still embryonic.
- Sir Syed Ahmad Khan analysed causes in Asbab-e-Baghawat-e-Hind (1859).
- Later historians stress peasant, taluqdar and regional strands as well; still keep centres, leaders, dates and consequences clear.

> Logic: Labels matter less than Meerut 10 May, centre↔leader matches, and 1858 Crown — but Savarkar vs Majumdar vs Outram–Taylor (आउटराम) remain high-yield confused pairs.

5.1 Revolt of 1857

- The Revolt of 1857 was a widespread uprising against East India Company rule. It lasted from 1857 to 1858.
- It started among sepoys (Indian soldiers) and then spread to peasants, taluqdars, artisans and displaced Indian rulers.
- The strongest area was North and Central India, especially present-day Uttar Pradesh (उत्तर प्रदेश).
- The British called it a Sepoy Mutiny. Later nationalist writers called it the First War of Independence.
- V.D. Savarkar used that nationalist name in his book The Indian War of Independence (इंडियन वॉर ऑफ इंडिपेंडेंस) (1909).
- Popular symbols of the rising were the lotus and chapatis.
- It was not a war of the whole of India. Punjab, Madras, Bombay, Hyderabad and most of South India stayed quiet or helped the British.
- There was no single national command and no modern political party (राजनीतिक दल) behind it.

> Logic: The revolt did not begin at Delhi. The mass outbreak was at Meerut on 10 May 1857.

Causes

The revolt grew out of political annexations, especially the Doctrine of Lapse (विलुप्ति सिद्धांत) and the 1856 annexation of Awadh (अवध अधिग्रहण), alongside economic strain on peasants and artisans, social and religious fears around missionary activity and the greased cartridge, and military grievances among Bengal Army sepoys over pay, promotion and forced overseas service.

Course

The spark came from Mangal Pandey's attack at Barrackpore on 29 March 1857, and the mass outbreak followed at Meerut on 10 May 1857; rebels seized Delhi within two days and proclaimed Bahadur Shah Zafar emperor, giving the rising a Mughal symbol. Through May–July 1857 the revolt spread to Kanpur, Lucknow, Jhansi, Bareilly, Jagdishpur, Faizabad and Allahabad, each rising under its own local leader, while the British organised suppression using loyal princes, the telegraph and the railways. Delhi fell back to British forces in September 1857, and the last major centres were cleared through 1858.

Results

The Government of India Act, 1858 ended East India Company rule and transferred India to the Crown, with the Queen's Proclamation read at Allahabad on 1 November 1858 and Lord Canning becoming the first Viceroy. The army was reorganised on a mixed-recruitment pattern, the Doctrine of Lapse was dropped as a routine annexation tool, and later nationalists came to treat 1857 as the beginning of India's freedom struggle.

5.2 Causes

Political

- The Doctrine of Lapse (Dalhousie (डलहौज़ी)) annexed states with no natural heir. Jhansi, Satara and Nagpur are the stock examples.
- Awadh was annexed in 1856 on the charge of misrule, not under Lapse. Nawab Wajid Ali Shah (वाजिद अली शाह) was sent to Calcutta.
- These annexations angered rulers, their soldiers and the people who had lived under them.

Economic

- Land revenue was high and had to be paid in cash.
- Traditional handicrafts declined under cheap British imports.
- In Awadh, many taluqdars lost estates after annexation. Peasants also suffered.

Social and religious

- Missionary activity created fear of forced conversion.
- Social laws such as abolition of sati and widow remarriage were read by many as an attack on custom.
- The army's new Enfield rifle used a cartridge rumoured to be greased with cow and pig fat.

Military

- Indian sepoys were paid less and promoted less than British soldiers.
- The General Service Enlistment Act, 1856 required new recruits to serve overseas. Crossing the sea (kalapani) was against the caste belief of many high-caste sepoys of the Bengal Army.
- Stoppage of bhatta / batta (foreign-service allowance) when serving in Sindh or Punjab angered sepoys further.
- In December 1856 the Company decided to replace the old Brown Bess musket with the new Enfield rifle. Training/trial centres were Dum Dum, Ambala and Sialkot.
- Loading needed biting the cartridge; from January 1857 rumours spread that it was greased with cow and pig fat. Officers dismissed the rumours; sepoys treated them as an attack on religion.

- The greased cartridge became the immediate spark. It was not the only cause. Modern readings treat it as the spark that fired long-built political, social, religious and economic anger.
- Inefficiency of British officers was not a standard sepoy grievance behind the rising.

> Logic: Awadh 1856 ≠ Doctrine of Lapse. Greased cartridge = spark, not the full explanation. Brown Bess → Enfield decision = December 1856.

5.3 Beginning of Revolt — Mangal Pandey and Meerut

Causes — why it turned violent that week

- The long-building causes — annexations, high revenue demands, missionary fear, and sepoy grievances over pay and promotion — had already built up pressure across the Bengal Army belt.
- The greased-cartridge rumour turned that pressure into action within weeks. Sepoys read it as a deliberate attack on their faith, not a technical detail.

Course — spark, outbreak, and first spread

- On 29 March 1857, sepoy Mangal Pandey of the 34th Bengal Native Infantry attacked British officers at Barrackpore. The commanding officer at Barrackpore was John Bennet Hearsey. Pandey was hanged on 8 April 1857 and the regiment was later disbanded. This was the spark, not the start of the revolt.
- At Meerut (मेरठ), sepoys of the 3rd Bengal Light Cavalry who refused the new cartridges were court-martialled and sentenced on 9 May 1857.
- On 10 May 1857 the Meerut sepoys mutinied, freed their comrades, killed officers, and marched towards Delhi. Major General William Hewitt had about 2,200 European soldiers there but did not check the march. This is treated as the actual start of the revolt.
- On 11–12 May 1857 the rebels seized Delhi and proclaimed Bahadur Shah II (Zafar) as emperor, giving the rising a Mughal symbol.
- Popular symbols of the struggle were the lotus and chapatis, which circulated across North Indian villages.
- From May–June 1857 the rising spread outward to Kanpur, Lucknow, Jhansi, Bareilly, Allahabad, Faizabad and parts of Bihar, each place rising under its own local leader.

Results — what this first month produced

- Delhi became the rebels' symbolic capital, though real fighting power stayed with regional leaders such as Bakht Khan, Nana Sahib and the Rani of Jhansi.
- Within ten weeks of Meerut, a single sepoy spark had grown into a belt of linked risings across North and Central India, not one national command.

Date	Place	What happened
Dec 1856	Army	Decision to introduce Enfield (replace Brown Bess); trials at Dum Dum, Ambala, Sialkot

Date	Place	What happened
29 March 1857	Barrackpore	Mangal Pandey incident (Hearsey CO)
10 May 1857	Meerut	Mass outbreak (Hewitt fails to stop march)
11–12 May 1857	Delhi	City seized; Zafar proclaimed emperor
30 May / 4 June 1857	Lucknow	Rising under Begum Hazrat Mahal (sources split on the exact day)
5 June 1857	Kanpur	Nana Sahib declared Peshwa
June 1857	Jhansi	Rising — not 11 May

> Logic: Barrackpore is the spark. Meerut is the beginning. Unmatched date trap: Jhansi — 11 May 1857 (Jhansi rose in June, not May). Lotus + chapati = symbol pair.

5.4 Centres of Revolt

Learn place ↔ leader and place ↔ date as one set.

Centre	Leader	When it rose
Barrackpore	Mangal Pandey	29 March 1857
Meerut	Sepoys of the 3rd Light Cavalry	10 May 1857
Delhi	Bahadur Shah Zafar (nominal); Bakht Khan (military)	11–12 May 1857
Lucknow	Begum Hazrat Mahal (son Birjis Qadr)	30 May / 4 June 1857
Kanpur (कानपुर)	Nana Sahib; military command of Tantia Tope	5 June 1857 (Peshwa declaration)
Jhansi (झांसी)	Rani Lakshmibai	June 1857 (not 11 May)
Bareilly	Khan Bahadur Khan	May–June 1857
Faizabad	Maulvi Ahmadullah Shah	1857
Allahabad	Maulvi Liaquat Ali	June 1857
Jagdishpur / Arrah (Bihar)	Kunwar Singh	July 1857 (Danapur rising 25 July)
Assam	Maniram Dutta (raised Kandarpeshwar Singh)	1857
Auwa (Rajasthan)	Thakur Kushal Singh	1857

- Delhi gave the revolt a Mughal symbol, but fighting power stayed with regional leaders.
- Jhansi did not rise on 11 May 1857. That date belongs to the Delhi week. Jhansi rose in June 1857.

- Bareilly's leader is Khan Bahadur Khan, not Begum Hazrat Mahal.
- Jaipur and Chittor were not centres. In Bihar, Munger stayed largely unaffected while Arrah–Danapur–Jagdishpur burned.
- The largest number of rebel sepoys came from Awadh / Oudh.

> Logic: Wrong date pair = Jhansi — 11 May 1857 (Jhansi rose in June). Liyaqat Ali (लियाकत) ≠ Lucknow (that is Hazrat Mahal).
>
> [!TIP] Exam Anchor — Commencement Dates of 1857 Uprisings (UPPCS 2023 Spine): - Barrackpore: 29 March 1857 (Mangal Pandey mutinied in 34th BNI). - Meerut: 10 May 1857 (3rd Native Cavalry broke open jail, marched to Delhi). - Lucknow: 30 May / 4 June 1857 (Begum Hazrat Mahal proclaimed Birjis Qadr). - Jhansi: 4 June 1857 (Rani Lakshmibai assumed leadership; NOT 11 May).

Centre by centre — Causes, Course and Results

Each centre had its own local grievance before 1857, its own course of fighting, and its own fall date. Learn each as one small story with Causes, Course and Results, not a bare name.

Delhi

Causes: Delhi still carried the last Mughal name, so rebels used the city to give the rising a national face and rally point.

Course: Sepoys marching from Meerut seized the city on 11–12 May 1857; Zafar was proclaimed emperor while Bakht Khan organised the real defence, received the title Saheb-e-Alam Bahadur, and fought through the summer of 1857. Mirza Ghalib lived through the Delhi rising as a witness.

Results: British forces under John Nicholson stormed and recaptured Delhi in September 1857; Nicholson died in the assault. Zafar was tried and exiled to Rangoon, ending even the symbolic Mughal presence.

Kanpur

Causes: The British had stopped Nana Sahib's pension after Baji Rao II's death, giving him a personal grievance on top of the general political anger felt across Awadh and the Bengal Army belt.

Course: On 5 June 1857 he was declared Peshwa (पेशवा) and took political control of Kanpur with Tantia Tope (Ramchandra Pandurang) commanding the fighting and Azimullah Khan advising; the Bibighar killings happened during his hold on the city.

Results: British relief columns under Havelock and Colin Campbell recaptured Kanpur. Nana Sahib fled towards Nepal; Tantia Tope carried the fight on to Jhansi and Gwalior.

Lucknow

Causes: Awadh's annexation in 1856 had just deposed Nawab Wajid Ali Shah, leaving Begum Hazrat Mahal and the region's taluqdars with a fresh grievance. Awadh also supplied the largest body of rebel sepoys.

Course: She led the rising from late May / early June 1857 and placed her son Birjis Qadr on the masnad. The British Residency was besieged for months, and Henry Lawrence died defending it.

Havelock and Neill also died in the Lucknow theatre.

Results: Colin Campbell, with Gurkha help, and Outram relieved and later recaptured Lucknow (21 March 1858). Hazrat Mahal took shelter in Nepal.

Jhansi

Causes: Dalhousie's Doctrine of Lapse had refused to recognise Rani Lakshmibai's adopted (अंगीकृत) son, Damodar (दामोदर) Rao, and annexed the state in 1854.

Course: She rose in June 1857 and defended Jhansi against Sir Hugh Rose in 1858, then moved on with Tantia Tope to Kalpi and Gwalior.

Results: She died fighting near Gwalior on 18 June 1858. Hugh Rose's famous remark treated her as the bravest of the rebel leaders. Her samadhi is at Gwalior.

Bareilly

Causes: Bareilly's Rohilla sepoys and townspeople carried the same military and religious grievances that were driving the revolt across the North-Western Provinces.

Course: Khan Bahadur Khan led the rising here through May–June 1857, organised a large local force, and ran administration for months. Bahadur Shah II appointed him Viceroy.

Results: The British recaptured Bareilly in 1858. Khan Bahadur Khan was later tried and hanged.

Jagdishpur / Arrah (Bihar)

Causes: Kunwar Singh, an aged zamindar of Jagdishpur (Shahabad), faced British pressure on his estate through revenue and legal disputes.

Course: After the Danapur rising (25 July 1857) he occupied Arrah; when Vincent Eyre relieved Arrah and destroyed Jagdishpur, Kunwar fought a mobile campaign through Lucknow and Azamgarh and back into Bihar.

Results: He won near Jagdishpur against Captain Le Grand (23 April 1858) but died on 26 April 1858. His brother Amar Singh continued the struggle for a time.

Faizabad

Causes: Faizabad sat inside the Awadh–NWP belt, where annexation and taluqdar grievances ran deepest, and it also held a strong body of religious and military opinion against the British.

Course: Maulvi Ahmadullah Shah, originally from Chinapattan (Madras) but settled at Faizabad, led the rising and then fought on in the Lucknow region alongside Begum Hazrat Mahal's forces. The British called him among the bravest rebel soldiers and set a ₹50,000 bounty on him.

Results: The Faizabad rising was suppressed along with the wider Awadh revolt by 1858; Ahmadullah Shah was later killed through betrayal while still resisting.

Allahabad

Causes: Allahabad sat in the Awadh–NWP belt and shared its annexation and taluqdar grievances, and its garrison carried the same sepoy discontent as the rest of the Bengal Army.

Course: Maulvi Liaquat Ali (of Mahgaon, Chail) led the rising from June 1857, took Khusro Bagh as headquarters, and briefly ran liberated Allahabad before the British counter-attack.

Results: Colonel Neill's repression at Allahabad was especially harsh. Canning later used Allahabad as an emergency headquarters, and the Queen's Proclamation was read here on 1 November 1858.

Assam

Causes: Local Assamese elites sought to restore a native royal line against Company control.

Course: Diwan Maniram Dutta declared Kandarpeshwar Singh, grandson of the last king, as ruler and tried to raise Assam in 1857.

Results: Maniram was caught and hanged; the Assam rising did not become a lasting front.

Auwa (Rajasthan)

Causes: Local Thakur resistance in Marwar (मारवाड़) clashed with British and princely collaborators.

Course: Thakur Kushal Singh of Auwa defeated the combined army of the British and Jodhpur.

Results: Auwa remained a remembered Rajasthan centre; Jaipur itself did not become a major revolt seat.

Gwalior (Central India theatre)

Causes: After Jhansi fell, Lakshmibai and Tantia Tope needed a fresh base; Gwalior's fort and stores made it the natural next prize even though the Scindia house stayed loyal to the British.

Course: In June 1858 the rebels briefly seized Gwalior while Scindia fled; fighting then centred near Kotah-ki-Serai.

Results: Hugh Rose recovered Gwalior. Lakshmibai died in the fighting (18 June 1858). Gwalior is therefore a final-theatre place, not a May 1857 outbreak centre.

5.5 Leaders of Revolt

The six named leaders of the syllabus have their own headings below. These are the other names that often appear in match and option sets.

- Bahadur Shah Zafar was the last Mughal emperor. Rebels made him the symbolic head at Delhi. After Delhi fell he was tried, exiled to Rangoon, and died in 1862.
- Bakht Khan, a Rohilla officer from the Bareilly contingent, organised the actual fighting at Delhi and received the title Saheb-e-Alam Bahadur. Zafar did not command the army in the field.
- Khan Bahadur Khan led the revolt at Bareilly in Uttar Pradesh. Bahadur Shah II appointed him Viceroy. He is not the leader of Lucknow.
- Maulvi Ahmadullah Shah (the Maulvi of Faizabad) led at Faizabad and also fought in the Lucknow region; he came from Chinapattan (Madras) and carried a ₹50,000 British bounty.
- Maulvi Liaquat Ali led at Allahabad from Khusro Bagh — do not put him at Lucknow.
- Azimullah Khan was the political adviser of Nana Sahib and is also remembered as Krantidoot.
- Birjis Qadr, son of Begum Hazrat Mahal, was seated as the young ruler at Lucknow.
- Maniram Dutta led the Assam attempt with Kandarpeshwar Singh.
- Thakur Kushal Singh led at Auwa. Fazil Mohammad Khan is linked to the Bhopal rising; Saadat Khan (सादात खान) to Indore.

- Nawab Hamid Ali Khan is associated with Delhi in several match lists (alongside Nana–Kanpur, Ahmadullah–Lucknow/Faizabad theatre, Maniram–Assam).

British commanders (pairs)

- John Nicholson led the assault that recaptured Delhi in September 1857. He was killed in the assault. Hodson captured Zafar.
- Henry Lawrence defended the Lucknow Residency and died during the siege.
- Havelock, Neill and later Colin Campbell operated at Kanpur and in the relief of Lucknow. Outram also took part in the Lucknow operations.
- Sir Hugh Rose led the campaign against Jhansi, Kalpi and Gwalior.
- John Bennet Hearsey was Barrackpore's commanding officer when Mangal Pandey rose.
- William Hewitt failed to stop the Meerut sepoys' march on Delhi.

> Logic: Bareilly's leader is Khan Bahadur Khan. Do not put Hazrat Mahal, Nana Sahib or Kunwar Singh at Bareilly.
>
> [!TIP] Exam Anchor — Rohilkhand / Bareilly Leadership (UPPCS 2023 Spine): - Leader: Khan Bahadur Khan (grandson of Rohilla chief Hafiz Rahmat Khan) established a successful regional administration with an army of 40,000, appointed Viceroy of Bareilly by Mughal Emperor Bahadur Shah II.

5.6 Important Places

Centre, leader and start-date are in the table above. These are the other places that still get asked.

- Lucknow Residency was besieged for months. Henry Lawrence was killed there.
- Bibighar at Kanpur is linked to the massacre during Nana Sahib's control of the city.
- After Jhansi fell, Lakshmibai (लक्ष्मीबाई) and Tantia Tope moved to Kalpi and then to Gwalior.
- Gwalior was the capital of Sindhia. The Rani died near Gwalior at Kotah-ki-Serai on 17/18 June 1858.
- Arrah was the main siege town in Kunwar Singh's Bihar campaign.
- Tantia Tope was hanged at Shivpuri on 18 April 1859.
- Bahadur Shah Zafar was exiled to Rangoon.
- Allahabad saw harsh repression under Colonel Neill. The Queen's Proclamation was read here on 1 November 1858.

> Logic: Lakshmibai died at Gwalior in 1858, not at the first fall of Jhansi in 1857.

5.7 Results (Consequences of the Revolt)

- The Government of India Act, 1858 ended East India Company rule. India was placed under the British Crown.
- A Secretary of State for India was created in London. The Governor-General (गवर्नर-जनरल) was also given the title Viceroy.
- Lord Canning, who was already Governor-General during the revolt, became the first Viceroy. He had made Allahabad the emergency headquarters in 1857. The British Prime Minister was Palmerston.
- The Queen's Proclamation was issued on 1 November 1858 and read at Allahabad.
- The Proclamation promised: no more aggressive annexation, no interference in Indian religions, and equal treatment of Indians in service — in words, not always in practice. Among these, ending further annexation (and allowing adoption again) was the pledge most clearly followed.
- The army was reorganised on the Peel Commission line: European strength rose from about 45,000 (1857) to 65,000 (1858); Indian troops fell from about 2,38,000 to 1,40,000; Bengal European:Indian ratio was set near 1:2, Madras and Bombay near 1:3; recruitment shifted toward Gurkhas, Sikhs and Punjabis, and away from the old high-caste Bengal Army pattern.
- The Doctrine of Lapse was no longer used as a regular annexation tool. Princely treaties were stressed.
- The Mughal court at Delhi was finished. Later colonial writing often blamed Muslims specially for the revolt.
- Later nationalists treated 1857 as the beginning of the freedom struggle.

Why the Revolt Failed

- There was no all-India plan and no modern central leadership or clear forward-looking programme.
- Weapons and organisation were weaker than the Company's.
- Many princes helped the British: Scindias of Gwalior (minister Dinkar Rao), Holkars of Indore, Nizam of Hyderabad (Salar Jung), Bhopal, Jodhpur, Sikh chiefs of Patiala, Nabha and Jind, Kashmir's ruler, and others. Canning said such rulers acted as a breakwater without which the British would have been washed out of India.
- Nepal also aided them, as did Sikh and Pathan forces used to retake Delhi.
- The educated middle class largely stayed neutral; many sahukars (साहूकार) and landlords opposed a popular rising that threatened their interests.
- The British used the telegraph and railways to move troops.
- Large parts of the South, Punjab, Gujarat, and much of Rajasthan (थार) (including Jaipur and Chittor) did not join.

Why it succeeded only partially

- The rising did end Company rule and force Crown takeover — that is a real political result, not a total zero.
- The Queen's Proclamation stopped routine annexation and restored princely adoption rights, which was a clear policy reverse after Lapse and Awadh 1856.

- The army was rebuilt on a new recruitment map, so the old Bengal Army pattern never returned unchanged.
- It did not win independence, create a national government, or unite all regions. Partial success means structural (संरचनात्मक) change under British recovery, not rebel victory.

Civilian vs sepoy strands

Strand	Who rose	Where it shows clearest	What to remember
Sepoy	Bengal Army soldiers over pay, promotion, overseas service and the cartridge	Meerut → Delhi march; Barrackpore spark	British writers stressed this strand alone and named it a Sepoy Mutiny
Civilian	Peasants, taluqdars, artisans, displaced courts and townspeople	Awadh / Lucknow, Kanpur hinterland, parts of Bundelkhand and Bihar	Annexation, revenue and estate loss drove non-military crowds into the rising
Mixed centres	Sepoy units plus local civilian support	Lucknow, Kanpur, Bareilly, Jagdishpur	Treat centre↔leader as one set; do not reduce every town to "only sepoys"

- Awadh is the classic mixed theatre: the largest rebel sepoy share came from Oudh, and taluqdars and peasants rose after the 1856 annexation.
- Punjab and the South stayed mostly quiet, so the civilian depth of 1857 was regional, not all-India.
- Many moneylenders and a large part of the educated middle class stayed out or opposed the rising — civilian India was not united behind the rebels.

Acts and settlement after 1857

- The Government of India Act, 1858 ended East India Company rule, created a Secretary of State for India in London with a Council, and made the Governor-General also Viceroy.
- The Queen's Proclamation (1 November 1858, Allahabad) promised no further aggressive annexation, non-interference in religion, and equal treatment in service — annexation-stop was the pledge most clearly kept.
- The Peel Commission rebuilt the army: more Europeans, fewer high-caste Bengal sepoys, and heavier recruitment of Gurkhas, Sikhs and Punjabis.
- The Indian Councils Act, 1861 restored legislative councils and began limited Indian association in law-making — a Crown-era administrative sequel, not a rebel demand granted in full.
- The short White Mutiny / European troops unrest (1859) followed the transfer of Company European soldiers to Crown service; it is an aftermath army fact, not a second 1857.
- Racial distrust hardened after 1857; later colonial writing often blamed Muslims specially, and social distance between rulers and ruled widened.

> Logic: Crown rule begins in 1858, not on 10 May 1857. Canning, not Dalhousie, was the first Viceroy. Peel = army reorg after 1857. Partial success ≠ rebel victory.

5.8 Rani Lakshmibai

- She was born Manikarnika on 19 November 1835 at Golghar, Varanasi. At about fourteen she married Gangadhar Rao of Jhansi.

Causes: They adopted Damodar Rao, but Dalhousie refused to recognise him as heir and annexed Jhansi under the Doctrine of Lapse in 1854.

Course: She refused to surrender Jhansi and defended the fort against Sir Hugh Rose's siege in 1858. When the city fell, she escaped with Tantia Tope and carried the fight on to Kalpi and then Gwalior, where the two briefly seized the fort from the Scindia.

Results: She died fighting near Gwalior on 18 June 1858. Hugh Rose said of her that among the Indian rebels the woman lying there was the only man. Her samadhi is at Gwalior.

> Logic: The Rani Jhansi Regiment of the INA (आज़ाद हिंद फौज) was raised by Subhas Chandra Bose (सुभाष चंद्र बोस). It is not an 1857 fact. Birthplace = Varanasi (वाराणसी), death/samadhi = Gwalior.

5.9 Nana Sahib

- He was the adopted son of the last Peshwa, Baji Rao II, and lived at Bithoor. His personal name is often given as Nana Dhondho Pant.

Causes: The British stopped his pension after Baji Rao II's death, refusing to treat him as heir to the Peshwa's title or allowance — a standard political grievance of 1857 that gave him a personal stake in the rising.

Course: On 5 June 1857 he was declared Peshwa and became the political leader of the revolt at Kanpur, with Tantia Tope as his military commander and Azimullah Khan as his adviser; the Bibighar killings took place during his hold on the city.

Results: After British forces under Havelock and Colin Campbell recaptured Kanpur, he fled towards Nepal (with Begum Hazrat Mahal among those who also took that route); his later end is not clearly known.

> Logic: Nana Sahib is Kanpur, not Bareilly.

5.10 Tantia Tope

- His original name was Ramchandra Pandurang. He was the main general of Nana Sahib at Kanpur and is sometimes called the Ambassador of the Revolt.

Causes: He shared Nana Sahib's grievance against the British and became his most capable field commander once the Kanpur rising began.

Course: He directed the fighting at Kanpur, then after its fall joined Rani Lakshmibai at Kalpi and Gwalior, and afterward carried on a mobile guerrilla war across Central India through 1858–59.

Results: Betrayed by his friend Man Singh, he was captured in a forest camp, tried at Shivpuri, and hanged on 18 April 1859 — one of the last major rebel leaders to fall.

> Logic: Tantia Tope is a general, not the Nawab of Awadh and not the leader of Bareilly.

5.11 Kunwar Singh

- He was an aged zamindar of Jagdishpur in Bihar (Shahabad / Arrah region).

Causes: He faced mounting British pressure on his estate through revenue demands and legal disputes, which turned his personal grievance into rebellion once the wider revolt broke out.

Course: He assumed command after the Danapur rising (25 July 1857), occupied Arrah, then fought a mobile campaign through Lucknow and Azamgarh and back into Bihar despite his advanced age.

Results: He defeated Captain Le Grand near Jagdishpur (23 April 1858) but died on 26 April 1858. His brother Amar Singh continued the struggle for a time and later joined rebels in the Nepal Terai (तराई).

> Logic: Kunwar Singh belongs to Bihar, not to Lucknow, Bareilly or Jhansi.
>
> [!TIP] Exam Anchor — Bihar Theatre & Doctrine of Lapse (UPPCS 2024 Spine): - Statement 1: Babu Kunwar Singh, Zamindar of Jagdishpur (Arrah, Bihar), led the rebellion against the British in Bihar. (True) - Statement 2: Lord Dalhousie recognized the adopted son of Rani Lakshmibai as heir. (False — Dalhousie rejected adopted son Damodar Rao under the Doctrine of Lapse and annexed Jhansi in 1854).

5.12 Begum Hazrat Mahal

- She was the wife of Nawab Wajid Ali Shah of Awadh, who had been deposed in 1856.

Causes: Her husband's deposition and Awadh's 1856 annexation had already angered the region's taluqdars and sepoys, giving her a direct grievance once the 1857 rising began.

Course: She led the revolt at Lucknow and across Awadh from June 1857, placed her son Birjis Qadr on the masnad, and held the British Residency under siege for months before Colin Campbell and Outram relieved and recaptured the city.

Results: After Lucknow fell she took shelter in Nepal, ending her direct role in the revolt.

> Logic: Begum Hazrat Mahal is Lucknow / Awadh, not Bareilly.

5.13 Mangal Pandey

- He was a sepoy of the 34th Native Infantry stationed at Barrackpore.

Causes: He, like other high-caste sepoys of the Bengal Army, believed the new Enfield cartridge was greased with cow and pig fat, reading (रीडिंग) it as a deliberate attack on his religion on top of the long-building political and military grievances of 1857.

Course: On 29 March 1857 he attacked British officers at Barrackpore in protest, calling on fellow sepoys to join him. He was overpowered, court-martialled, and hanged on 8 April 1857; the 34th Native Infantry was disbanded soon after.

Results: His act became the first famous spark of 1857, though it did not itself trigger a mass rising — that came five weeks later at Meerut on 10 May 1857, a separate and larger event.

> Logic: Mangal Pandey = Barrackpore, 29 March. Meerut = 10 May.

5.14 Role of Awadh

- Dalhousie annexed Awadh in 1856. The Resident was Outram.
- The official reason was misgovernance, not the Doctrine of Lapse.
- Nawab Wajid Ali Shah was sent to Calcutta.
- A large number of Bengal Army sepoys came from Awadh, so annexation hit the army directly. The largest share of 1857 rebel sepoys came from Oudh (figures above 75,000 are often cited).
- Taluqdars lost land after the new settlement. That is why Awadh saw a big civilian revolt around Lucknow, not only a sepoy mutiny.
- Chronology reminder: Awadh's annexation (1856) comes before the Indigo (नील) Revolt (1859).

> [!TIP] Exam Anchor — 19th-Century Chronological Spine (UPPCS 2025 Matrix): - 1. Annexation of Awadh: February 1856 CE (Dalhousie on Outram's report of maladministration) - 2. Indigo Revolt in Bengal: 1859–1860 CE (Digambar & Bishnu Biswas) - 3. Second Anglo-Afghan War: 1878–1880 CE (under Lord Lytton) - 4. Ilbert Bill Controversy: 1883 CE (under Lord Ripon)
>
> Logic: Awadh was annexed in 1856. It is a cause of 1857, not a result of 1857.

5.15 Role of Uttar Pradesh

Present-day Uttar Pradesh (then the North-Western Provinces plus Awadh) was the main theatre of 1857.

- Meerut saw the mass outbreak on 10 May 1857.
- Lucknow was the capital of Awadh. Begum Hazrat Mahal led it. The rising began on 4 June 1857.
- Kanpur was led by Nana Sahib, with Tantia Tope in military command.

- Bareilly was led by Khan Bahadur Khan.
- Allahabad was led by Maulvi Liaquat Ali. The Queen's Proclamation was later read here on 1 November 1858.
- Faizabad was led by Maulvi Ahmadullah Shah.
- Banaras and Allahabad also saw British counter-terror under officers such as Neill. Rebel hold there was shorter.

In this region sepoys, peasants and taluqdars rose together more than in the South or Punjab.

> Logic: Kunwar Singh is Bihar. Jhansi is Bundelkhand. Both are asked with UP centres, but they are not UP towns.

5.16 Master Fact-Locks — Revolt of 1857: Centres, Leaders, Historiography & Reorganization

Dimension / Theme	Comprehensive Historical Specifics & Events	Official High-Yield Exam Anchors
Immediate Spark & Ignition	• Enfield Rifle Introduction: Decided in December 1856 to replace the old smoothbore Brown Bess musket with Enfield rifles; instruction depots at Dum Dum, Ambala, and Sialkot. • Cartridge Crisis: Required biting off the greased paper tip; rumors of beef tallow (offensive to Hindus) and lard (pig fat, offensive to Muslims). • Barrackpore Uprising (29 March 1857): Sepoy Mangal Pandey of the 34th Bengal Native Infantry (BNI) fired upon and killed Sergeant-Major's adjutant Lt. Baugh; commanding officer was Lt. Gen. Sir John Bennet Hearsey; Mangal Pandey executed on 8 April 1857. • Meerut Outbreak (10 May 1857): 85 troopers of the 3rd Bengal Light Cavalry mutinied; Major General William Hewitt failed to intercept; mutineers marched overnight to Delhi. • Delhi Seizure (11–12 May 1857): Proclaimed 82-year-old Mughal Emperor Bahadur Shah II (Zafar) as Shahenshah-e-Hindustan; General Bakht Khan took military charge as Commander-in-Chief with the title Saheb-e-Alam Bahadur. • Symbols: Undercover circulation of Lotus flowers and Chapatis (unleavened bread) across northern villages.	29 March (Barrackpore) \rightarrow 10 May (Meerut) \rightarrow 12 May (Delhi)

Dimension / Theme	Comprehensive Historical Specifics & Events	Official High-Yield Exam Anchors
Comprehensive Centres & Leaders Alignment	• Delhi: Bahadur Shah II (nominal) & General Bakht Khan (operational); recaptured 20 September 1857 by British forces under John Nicholson (fatally wounded). • Kanpur: Nana Saheb (Dhondhu Pant) declared Peshwa on 5 June 1857; assisted by brilliant military general Tatya Tope (Ramchandra Pandurang) and diplomatic secretary Azimullah Khan (Krantidoot); recaptured by Colin Campbell; Nana Saheb escaped to Nepal in 1859. • Tatya Tope's End: Betrayed by trusted friend Raja Man Singh of Narwar in the Paron forest; captured, tried, and hanged at Shivpuri (MP) on 18 April 1859. • Lucknow (Awadh): Led by Begum Hazrat Mahal on behalf of minor son Birjis Qadr on 30 May / 4 June 1857; largest sepoy contingent originated here ("Nursery of the Bengal Army", >75,000 sepoys); British officers killed in Lucknow Residency: Sir Henry Lawrence, Major General Henry Havelock, Brigadier General James Neill; recaptured on 21 March 1858 by Sir Colin Campbell with Gurkha troops; Begum took refuge in Nepal (died 1879). • Jhansi & Gwalior: Rani Lakshmibai (Manikarnika) born 19 Nov 1835 at Golghar, Varanasi; married to Raja Gangadhar Rao; kingdom annexed 1854 under Lapse; revolted 4 June 1857; joined Tatya Tope at Gwalior; martyred fighting British general Sir Hugh Rose on 18 June 1858 at Kotah-ki-Serai (Gwalior); Samadhi at Gwalior. Rose remarked: "The Indian rebel who lies here was the only man among them." • Bihar (Jagdishpur / Arrah): Babu Kunwar Singh (80-year-old Rajput Zamindar of Jagdishpur/Shahabad) joined Danapur mutineers on 25 July 1857, captured Arrah, liberated Azamgarh (UP), defeated British Captain Le Grand on 23 April 1858, died of wounds on 26 April 1858; continued by brother Amar Singh; suppressed by William Tayler and Vincent Eyre. • Allahabad (Prayagraj): Led by Maulvi Liyaqat Ali who seized Khusro Bagh and declared himself Governor; suppressed by General Neill; Lord Canning established emergency imperial headquarters at Allahabad. • Faizabad (Ayodhya): Led by Maulavi Ahmadullah Shah (native of Chinapattan/Madras; preached holy war against British; £5,000 / Rs. 50,000 bounty on his head; called "the best soldier among the rebels" by British officers); killed at Powayan border. • Bareilly (Rohilkhand): Khan Bahadur Khan (grandson of Hafiz Rahmat Khan). • Assam: Diwan Maniram Dutta proclaimed Kandarpeshwar Singh; Maniram was executed. • Rajasthan (Auwa): Thakur Kushal Singh of Auwa defeated joint British and Jodhpur State armies. • Bhopal: Nawab Fazil Mohammad Khan and Adil Mohammad Khan led rebellion and sacrificed life.	Complete geographic & leadership matrix

Dimension / Theme	Comprehensive Historical Specifics & Events	Official High-Yield Exam Anchors
	• Indore: Saadat Khan led troops of Maharaja Tukoji Rao Holkar II in revolt. • Mullayan / Ganjam / Sambalpur: Surender Sahi (Sambalpur) and Radhakrishna Dandsena (Ganjam).
Unaffected Territories & Breakwaters	• Unaffected Areas: Entire South India (Madras Presidency), Punjab, Sindh, Rajasthan (except Auwa/Kota), Gujarat, Chittor, and Munger in Bihar. • Active Pro-British Native Rulers: Scindias of Gwalior (minister Sir Dinkar Rao), Nizam of Hyderabad (minister Salar Jung), Holkars of Indore, rulers of Patiala, Nabha, Jind, Kapurthala, Kashmir (Maharaja Gulab/Ranbir Singh), and Nepal (Rana Jung Bahadur). • Canning's Breakwater Quote: "If the Scindia joins the mutineers, I shall have to pack up tomorrow... The princely states acted as breakwaters to the storm which would have otherwise swept us away in one great wave." • Neutral Classes: Western-educated Indian middle class, urban moneylenders (Sahukars), big merchants.	Causes of failure & geographical limits
Contemporary Observers & Chroniclers	• Mirza Ghalib: Celebrated Urdu/Persian poet (born 1797 Agra, died 1869 Delhi) witnessed the bloody sack of Delhi with his own eyes, describing the tragic horrors in his letters (Dastambu). • Sir William Howard Russell: Foreign correspondent of The Times (London) reported: "Nobody in North India looks at a white man's car with a friendly view." • British Prime Minister: Viscount Palmerston (1855–1858 and 1859–1865).	Contemporary voices & British PM

Dimension / Theme	Comprehensive Historical Specifics & Events	Official High-Yield Exam Anchors
Historiography of 1857	• Sir Syed Ahmad Khan: Published Asbab-e-Baghawat-e-Hind (Causes of the Indian Revolt) in 1859, the first book in an Indian language (Urdu) examining the rebellion. • Vinayak Damodar Savarkar: Authored The Indian War of Independence 1857 (1909), the first to elevate the uprising as an organized national war of independence. • Dr. Surendra Nath Sen (S.N. Sen): Official Government of India historian; published Eighteen Fifty-Seven (1957); concluded that what began as a fight for religion ended as a war for independence. • Dr. R.C. Majumdar: Authored The Sepoy Mutiny and the Revolt of 1857 (1957); famously pronounced: "It is difficult to avoid the conclusion that the so-called First National War of Independence of 1857 is neither First, nor National, nor a War of Independence." Observed Indian nationalism was in an "embryonic stage". • British Imperialist Interpretations: - Sir James Outram and W. Tayler: Termed it a "Muslim conspiracy exploiting Hindu grievances". - Sir John Lawrence and Seeley: Regarded it as "wholly unpatriotic and selfish Sepoy Mutiny with no native leadership and no popular support". - T.R. Holmes: Characterized it as a "conflict between barbarism and civilization".	Definitive historiographical taxonomy
Queen's Proclamation & Peel Commission	• Queen Victoria's Proclamation (1 November 1858): Read by Lord Canning at an imperial Durbar in Allahabad (Prayagraj). • Provisions: Terminated EIC rule, placed India directly under the British Crown; abandoned the policy of territorial conquest and annexation (the only promise consistently honored); guaranteed religious neutrality; allowed native princes the right to adopt heirs. • Peel Commission (1858): Constituted for the complete reorganization of the Indian Army. • Reorganized regiments on the principle of "division and counterpoise" along communal, caste, and regional lines. • European troops increased from 45,000 to 65,000; Indian troops reduced from 238,000 to 140,000. • Troop Ratios: Fixed at 1:2 (European : Indian) in Bengal, and 1:3 in Madras and Bombay. • Heavy artillery and arsenal strictly reserved for European hands. • Deliberately recruited heavily from "Martial Races" (Gurkhas, Sikhs, and Punjabi Muslims), while drastically curtailing recruitment of high-caste Brahmins and Rajputs from Awadh and Bihar.	Army reorganization & imperial settlement